

Tips for School Administrators

Collected Documents from
David Cadavero
Former Superintendent of Schools
Greater New York Conference of Seventh-day Adventists

INTRODUCTION

This section introduces a variety of resources that should add "sparkle" to any school operation. The vast majority of the suggested items for implementation require only a limited amount of funds (many no funds at all). Each requires some coordination between colleagues and hard work. Remember, Adventist schools must reflect excellence – "Good enough schools are not good enough." We must choose excellence for our children every day and in every way. Each article, brochure, and one page handout share the same core beliefs:

1. We owe it to all our students to strive to implement programs that are exceptional, not merely adequate.
2. Excellence is not only achievable - anything less isn't good enough.
3. Where we do not achieve excellence, the reasons often have as much to do with self-satisfaction as with insufficient financial resources.

I pray that as you consider implementation of any of these resource materials or strategies that you will be empowered to pursue the level of excellence E.G. White says in Counsels on Education, p. 112 where she states:

"In our schools, the standard of education must not be lowered. It must be lifted, higher and still higher, far above where it now stands."

May God bless each of you as you strive toward making your schools models of excellence - leading your students toward their ultimate goal - heaven!

David A. Cadavero