Spanish Teaching Resources

Introduction

Español al Explorarlo has been created for any teacher who wishes to acquaint his/her students with the Spanish language in a fun and interactive manner. This unit has been done with an interdisciplinary approach in mind. Previous language experience in the Spanish language is not needed since the pronunciations for all the vocabulary will be clearly given. Although some of the activities and exercises included may be suited for primary grades, many of them can be adapted for higher grades. Use your judgement to determine which activities are best suited for your students.

The unit has been broken down into mini-units of study. Each mini-unit begins with an English/Spanish vocabulary list that will introduce the teacher to the vocabulary that will be covered within that unit. (You may want to copy these and send them home for parents to help their children with practice of their pronunciation). Each unit includes vocabulary cards with the Spanish vocabulary and the English translation. These cards can be cut and put into an index file for quick reference or used in games and other types of mentioned activities. You can also use them as a review exercise or assessment.

Each unit will also contain activity sheets as well as ideas for instructional activities. The teacher will decide which ones are suitable for the students. These can also be used to create portfolios which the students can keep at the end of the school year. Some units will also provide your students with a miniature study book of their own. The mini-books are usually sent home for the parents to see what students have been learning in class.

The themes included in this unit are those that I generally cover during a school year. My Spanish classes meet twice a week for thirty minutes. I have included a potpourri of activities from which you can choose according to the time available and age of your students. This unit of study can be expanded into a two-year unit. Remember that “practice makes perfect,” and the more the students practice, the better they’ll be at it.

The latest research shows compelling evidence that experience with two languages gives rise to mental flexibility, a superiority of concept formation and a more diversified set of mental abilities. It further demonstrates that language acquisition skills are sharpest at an early age. Younger children have a greater capacity for second language acquisition than older children and adults. (Enclosed you will find an interesting article on brain learning and languages.)

My approach to teaching a foreign language to small children is a hands on, experiential approach, based on the principles of fun, interaction and repetition. I have found that in this manner children learn very quickly and begin to use their “new” vocabulary words in their day to day activities. It is my hope that this unit will enhance your current program as you and your students explore the exciting and fascinating study of the Spanish language together.

Latest Information About How Language is Stored in the Brain

The science of brain mapping is providing new information about how people develop the ability to speak different languages. Researchers at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York are using new imaging techniques called functional MRI. This technique captures images while the brain is at work. It has been found that the ability to speak a second language is stored in different places in the brain depending upon the age at which a person becomes bilingual.

It has been determined that learning a second language later in life is fundamentally different than learning language early in life. Young children who learn a second language along with their native tongue store this capacity in a single sector in the brain. But if a second language is acquired later (such as in high school), the brain designates a separate area for it.

The researchers in this study caution that these results don't provide any definitive answers and that further research is necessary. However, other researchers maintain that it is very unlikely that anyone can acquire the proficiency of a native without learning the language before puberty. It isn't clear why the brain would use a separate area for a second language learned later in life. It may be that adults learn languages differently than younger children or that once a specific area for language production is established, its capacity can't be expanded. A new language may be processed through a different area of the brain.

These findings may help explain why people who move to the United States as adults never lose a foreign accent even when they speak perfect English. In contrast, those who learn two languages at an early age retain an ability to speak both as if each were their native language.

The implications of this study could greatly impact when and how a second language is learned in the United States. Language experts across the country are advocating that students begin the study of a second language in elementary school. Studies such as this will draw the attention to their claims and cause many schools to revisit how and when students learn a second language.

Note to the teacher:

- Me llamo literally means I call myself. Me is the object of the verb not the subject. The subject, yo is implied in the first person conjugation of the verb llamar (llamo). Se llama actually means he/she calls himself or herself or you call yourself (formal).
- There are two ways to express you in Spanish, the formal (usted) and the familiar (tú). The formal is used as an indication of respect when addressing elders and people of positions of authority, or when speaking to strangers. The familiar tú is used when addressing family, friends, and colleagues. In most Spanish speaking countries the plural form of you is ustedes. This is used to address any group of people, close friends, and elders alike. In Spain the plural form of you is vosotros and vosotras.
- The abbreviations Sr./ Sra./ Srta. stand for Señor, Señora, Señorita.
- In Spanish, special punctuation is used to warn the reader that the sentence will be either a question or an exclamation. To begin a question, an upside down question mark (¿) is used. Similarly, an upside-down exclamation point warns of an exclamation (!).

Tips:

1. Try making it a routine to begin and end each Spanish class by using the same greetings and leave takings. Students will quickly acquire some basic conversational phrases using the vocabulary.
2. Younger children learn very quickly singing the songs.
3. Have students stand up when you greet them.

Activity Ideas

Activities	Directions	Materials
Greeting	Begin each class with a greeting. Write greetings and illustrate them on a large piece of poster board for students to see.	poster board
Singing Songs	Write down the greetings and songs on a large piece of paper. *	large piece of paper, markers
Buenos días song	Have students shake hands with the person sitting next to them while they are singing.	None
Vocabulary Cards	These can be used as flash cards for the older students.	Scissors to cut cards them with.
Vocabulary Cards	Cut Spanish vocabulary cards and glue along the top to the corresponding English translation so that it looks like a window when you flip it up.	Scissors and glue
Picture Cues	Cut out and mount pictures depicting people in converstaion (or greeting each other). Ask students to tell you in Spanish what they think they are telling each other.	Color pictures from magazines, scissors, glue, poster board.
Sí- No game	Teacher says a greeting and its meaning. If the answer is correct, students say Sí. If it is not, they say No.	None
"Tres en Raya" or "Cuatro en Raya" (3 or 4 in a row game)	Use vocabulary cards and have students arrange them in three rows of three or four rows of four. Teacher calls out the greeting in English or Spanish and students turn the card over when they have 3 or 4 in a row they call out "tres" (three) or "cuatro". (Students turn their cards back ) This works best with older students.	Vocabulary cards (already cut out)
Saludos en círculo- game	All students stand in a circle. The teacher throws the ball to one of the students while saying the following: "Buenos días. Me llamo Señora/ Sr. _____ y tú, ¿cómo te llamas?" The student throws back the ball and answers: "Muy bien, gracias, ¿y Usted?" Teacher responds: "Muy bien, gracias ____." (name) The teacher then throws the ball to another student and starts the dialogue once again.	beach ball or other large soft ball

Note to Teacher:

- * Using commands involves students in a physical type of response. This also provides the teacher with a quick form of assessment. Use the commands as a form of review before playing games. Ex. Touch the red circle.
- * The question ¿De qué color es? Literally asks of what color is it? In English we have shortened the question to, What color is it?
Example: Show me the red circle.
- * When colors are used as adjectives in Spanish, the gender of the color must agree with the gender of the noun being described. Using el sombrero amarillo as an example, sombrero is masculine, so amarillo must also be masculine. If you were to translate yellow house into Spanish, it would be la casa amarilla, because casa is feminine.
Example: Touch the blue triangle.
- * Colors that end in consonants can be used with both masculine and feminine nouns without changing their spellings: el sombrero azul (the blue hat); la casa azul (the blue house).

Games to Play

Photocopy and cut Quizmo cards. You may even color each box for the younger grades.
Variation: Instead of calling it Quizmo, I call it “tres en raya” (three in a line) and students call out “tres” instead of Quizmo.

Variations:

Besides the traditional Quizmo game, try four corners, or forming the letter X, the letter T, I, or four in a square.

(You may use this blank Quizmo card to create your own game. Ideas: Children can color squares to create their own cards. Also they can draw shapes of different colors and sizes)

Las Formas Quizmo

Shape Quizmo can be played like regular Quizmo. This will be a good review. All you have to do is call the shapes and colors in Spanish:

Example: rectángulo rojo* (red rectangle)
círculo verde (green circle)
cuadrado azul (blue square)
tríangulo anaranjado (orange triangle)

(*In Spanish the name of the color goes last.)

(What color is missing?)

Lay down pieces of colored construction paper. Have students close their eyes while you take away one of the colors away. Then ask the question: ¿Qué color falta? (keh koh-lohr fahl-tah?) Students then take turns answering: Falta el _____ (rojo, amarillo...) .

Slap that color

Place pieces of colored construction paper on the floor. Choose two children to begin playing and hand them each a different color fly swatter to each child. When you call the color in Spanish the first one to hit it the correct color wins the round.

Color cake walk

Place colored construction paper or objects of different colors in a circle. Have equal number of children as colors stand in front of each color. Play some music. Have children go around the circle and when the music stops, they stop walking. Call a color. Whoever is standing in front of the color has to sit down. The last person standing is the winner.

Estoy Pensando

(I'm thinking)

Using vocabulary cards, small pieces of colored construction paper (or colored shapes), have a child choose one and hide it behind his back. The child begins the game by saying “Estoy pensando en un color” (ehs-toy pehn-sahn-doh ehn oohn koh-lohr) (I'm thinking about a color.) The children then guess- “¿Es rojo? ¿Es verde?” and the student leader answers “Sí or No” until the correct color is guessed. The person who guesses then has the chance to come and choose another color.

More advanced games with colored shapes

The leader says “Estoy pensando en una forma” (ehs-toy pehn-sahn-doh ehn ooh-nah fohr-mah) The children guess ¿Es un círculo rojo? ¿Es un cuadrado verde? and so on and the person who guesses correctly then has a chance to come up front and choose another shape.

Tres en Raya con las Formas

Cut out large and small shapes out of colored construction paper. Have students place them in three rows to three with an empty space in the middle. The teacher calls out “triángulo grande or cuadrado pequeño” and the students turns that shape over.

More advanced: When calling out the shapes use the colors as well as the shapes.

Example: el círculo pequeño amarillo. El cuadrado grande rojo.

Note: Always place the color before the shape. Ex. triángulo azul, círculo verde.

Podemos Contar

(We can count)

Students can practice numbers as well as learn their classmates names in this game. All you need is a large ball.

One player bounces the ball, counting to any number he or she chooses, once for each bounce. The other children count with him or her. Sometime during the count, (ex. uno, dos, tres) the player calls another player, “Marta” for example, and tosses the ball to her. The child who catches the ball must say. “Hola, me llamo Marta.” Then she bounces the ball and continues counting (ex. cuatro, cinco, seis, siete ...) (from the number where the other student stopped), accompanied by others. In order for each child to have a turn, each player may be limited to ten bounces, after which he or she must throw the ball to someone else.

- ◆ In Spanish the days of the week, the months and the seasons of the year are not capitalized.
- ◆ Happy Birthday can be expressed in Spanish as Feliz cumpleaños. Cumpleaños literally translates as years completed.
- ◆ FYI - One of the first calendar systems ever was invented by the Maya, a group of the highly advanced indigenous people who inhabited parts of Mexico, Guatemala, Honduras and Belize. According to this calendar, the year has 260 days: 20 weeks of thirteen days each and thirteen months of 20 days each. Although it was very complex, it is considered to be the most accurate pre-Gregorian calendar.

The Seasons Song

(Sing to the tune of “London Bridge”)

Hojas nuevas en el árbol,
 en el árbol, en el árbol.
 Hojas nuevas en el árbol.
 Es la primavera.

Muchas hojas en el árbol,
 en el árbol, en el árbol.
 Muchas hojas en el árbol,
 Es el verano.

Pocas hojas en el árbol,
 en el árbol, en el árbol.
 Pocas hojas en el árbol.
 Es el otoño.

Ya el árbol no tiene hojas.
 No tiene hojas, no tiene hojas.
 Ya el árbol no tiene hojas.
 Es el invierno.

New leaves on the tree
 On the tree, on the tree.
 New leaves on the tree
 It is Spring.

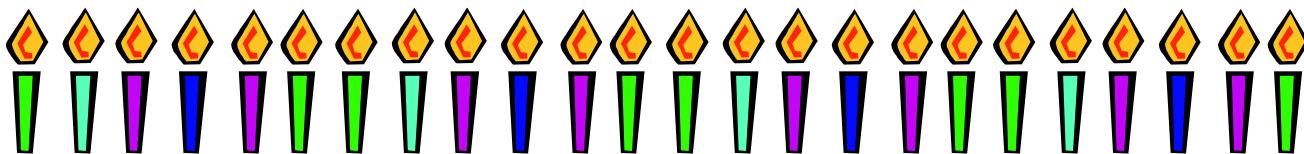

Many leaves on the tree.
 On the tree, on the tree.
 Many leaves on the tree.
 It is Summer.

Few leaves on the tree.
 On the tree, on the tree.
 Few leaves on the tree.
 It is Autumn.

The tree has no more leaves.
 No more leaves, no more leaves.
 The tree has no more leaves.
 It is winter.

(Ideas for song: Draw a tree on the board and add and erase the leaves as you sing the song. The song can also be illustrated with the different seasons and children can hold the pictures as they sing the song.)

The Birthday Song

(Sing to the tune of the Happy Birthday song)

Cumpleaños Feliz

Te deseamos a tí.

Cumpleaños a _____ (name)

Cumpleaños feliz.

Songs to Reinforce

Any music already existing with English lyrics can be used by replacing with the new Spanish vocabulary. Children can make patterns of beats for the days of the week as well. Let one child clap the beats of the syllables in the word “lunes.” Then let the next child clap the syllables in the word “martes.” Continue the process until every child has had a chance to clap the beats of at least one day of the week. This way all of the children have experienced the pronunciation of the new vocabulary words in slow repetition.

Season's Workstations	Divide the class of children into four equal groups. Set up work stations in four different areas of your classroom. Assign each group to a work station. Explain to the children that each work station represents one of the four seasons. Label each 'seasonal' station with Spanish name for that season. Send the groups to their particular seasonal station. At their station the children should discuss the activities and weather conditions that are special to that season. Upon completion of the discussion the children, (as a group) should paint a picture of their assigned season. When the seasonal picture is completed, each group will have the opportunity to present their seasonal picture to the rest of the class. Have each of the children use the following sentence to begin their description of their painting and tell about the season that they like. Example: En el invierno      me gusta _____.                           el primavera                           el verano  (In the season I like _____.)
Days of the week	Incorporating the Spanish translation of the days of the week into your regular curriculum can be done many ways. One very simple method is to alter your room calendar slightly. Attach cue cards with the Spanish words for the appropriate day of the week. As children become familiar with the new Spanish vocabulary, encourage them to recite the words before revealing the cue card's English equivalent.

More Games!

Calendar Games

There are many ways of integrating the Spanish days of the week into the curriculum, and games are certainly an enjoyable way of doing this. Collect some cardboard pieces and using a permanent marker write down the new Spanish vocabulary. Punch holes into either ends of the cardboard and attach a string through the holes; this makes it possible for children to wear the word. Divide the class into groups of eight children. Have seven of the children wear the seven Spanish days of the week. The remaining child must try to align the children in the correct order and then recite (in Spanish) the days of the week. The remaining child must try to align the children in the correct order and then recite (in Spanish) the days of the week.

For added fun, have relays or timed races. This game is recommended for children who already have a fairly developed understanding of the new vocabulary.

Variation:

Use the months of the year at the end of this section and play the same game using the months of the year.

¿Qué mes falta? (What month is missing?)

Use pictures representing the months of the year. Lay them on a table or on the floor. Have students close their eyes while you take away one of the pictures. Then ask the question: ¿Qué mes falta? (¿keh mehs fahl-tah?) Students then take turns answering: Falta el mes de _____.

Hands off! game

Hands off! is a chalkboard game in which two teams of students compete against each other. The teacher says a word in Spanish and one student from each team writes the correct answer with his/ her hands. When the teacher says, “Hands off!,” the students uncover their answers. The students with correct answers receive points. The team with the most points at the end of the game wins.

Month Cake Walk

Place the months of the year in a circle on the floor. Have equal number of children as months stand in front of each one. Play some music. Have children go around the circle and when the music stops, they stop walking. Call the month. Whoever is standing in front of the month has to sit down. The last person standing is the winner.

Birthday Game

If you keep a birthday calendar in your room, add some Spanish flavor by playing the Birthday Game. Children love celebrating their special day of the year. Have them tell you their birth month using the new Spanish vocabulary in this unit. (Mi cumpleaños es el _____ de _____.) If you have children who may be too young to recall the month they were born, come prepared to class with those dates. Begin by reciting the month of the year slowly. When the children hear their month they stand until the next month is introduced. Pick up speed as you go through the months a second and third time. Children love the movement and speed so be prepared for some volume.

Variations:

Have the children clap, sit, or if you are really brave, have them shout back the month when it is called.

Teaching Ideas:

Divide the bulletin board into twelve sections. Label each section. Label each section with a different month. As a class project, have the children illustrate a picture that is representative of that month.

Variation:

The bulletin board can make an attractive three dimensional display. Ask the children to bring objects that can be placed in each section.

- The verb hacer (to make, to do) is used to express most weather conditions in Spanish.
- The phrases like hace sol and hace viento are literally translated as it makes sun and it makes wind. We don't use that particular structure in English; we translate the phrases as it's sunny and it's windy.
- Optional: You might want to tell the children about the different weather and opposite seasons (to U.S.) in South America. Example: Children in Chile and Argentina go to the beach in December and January and go skiing during our summer months.

Vocabulary Cards	Cut Spanish vocabulary cards and glue along the top to the corresponding English translation so that it looks like a window when you flip it up.	Scissors Glue
Si o No game	Show a weather picture and make true or false statements about the pictures. If the answer is correct, students say Si . If it is not, they say No .	None
"Tres en Raya" or "Cuatro en Raya" (3 or 4 in a row game)	Cut out vocabulary cards and have students arrange them in three rows of three or four rows of four. Teacher calls out the greeting in English or Spanish and students turn the card over when they have 3 or 4 in a row they call out "tres" (three) or "cuatro." (Students turn their cards back.) # Weather Bulletin

Keeping a daily weather bulletin in the classroom is helpful in strengthening Spanish vocabulary in this area. Use a large piece of bristol board and write the following short sentences in large letters.

Hoy es _____, el _____ de 200___.
(day) (month) (year)

Es _____
(Season)

Hoy _____
(Weather expression)
