Dear Teachers:

This by no means is an exhaustive list. I'm sure you can add many more types of activities to this list. However, I find this to be a handy reference. As you can see, many of the activities are cooperative learning types. I have used many of them with great success. In the pages to follow, I have included a sample of activities you can use to foster active learning in your classroom.

Best wishes,

Helen E. Hovanic

P.S. You will find that many of these activities as well as the ones previously published, are somewhat adaptable for Junior and Senior High.

Warm-Up Activities and Fillers for the World Language Classroom

Most language teachers find that there is a bit of dead time during class. This may occur at the beginning of class, as the students are arriving; at the end of class, as they are thinking about leaving; and right in the middle of class, when transitioning from one lesson to another. During this dead time, the best option is to spend five or ten minutes on a short, interesting activity. The following are a few ideas.

Categories: Set up

Pick a category, such as household items

Activity: Each pupil has to name a household item until nobody can think of any more. The one who got the last item gets to choose the next category.

Variations: You can go in order around the classroom, have students call out the answers whenever they think of one, or toss a foam ball around - whoever catches it has to come up with the next answer.

Useful for

- Vocabulary groups like:
 - colors
 - numbers
 - household vocabulary

Repetitions: Set up

Find or type up a vocabulary list and make a copy for each student.

Activity: Call out one word at a time and have the students repeat. Explain the meaning of the word and go over any pronunciation difficulties.

Variation

- After repeating each word, have two or three students say it individually.
- Use for lists of expressions, verb conjugations, pronouns...

Useful for just about any vocabulary or expressions

Rounds- Set up Choose a logical group of vocabulary, such as numbers.

Activity: The first student in the class says the first word in the group (e.g., uno). The next student says dos, the next one says tres and so on.

Useful for

- Alphabet
- calendar (months, days, seasons)

M & M's- Set up: Pass around a bowl of M & Ms, Skittles, or similar and tell students to take a few, but not to eat any.

Activity: Each student count the number of M & M's and then has to tell something about his house for each one M & M taken.

Useful for

- Getting to know each other (e.g., first day)
- General information and interests
- A favorite food or restaurant
- family
- favorite animals

Twenty Questions: Set up On small slips of paper, write words from a vocabulary group, such as household items, with several slips for each one; you want to end up with a total of four or five groups. Give each student a slip of paper, but tell them to keep their item a secret.

Activity: The participants are to find the rest of their kind, by asking questions in Spanish about what the item is like. Once two of the same kind have found each other, they stay together to find more. Play continues until all of the like items have created one big group. This can be played at different levels depending on their level of proficiency.

Useful for

- household items
- family members
- classroom objects

Questions for interaction:

Simple level: ¿Tienes un or una? Do you have a ...?

More complex: ¿Es grande o pequeño tu artículo? Is your article big or small.

¿En qué cuarto lo usas? In what room do you use it?

Pancho Carranco

Activity: Whole class

Goal: To practice any vocabulary learned. To practice use of "tiene" (he or she has).

To practice negation.

Procedure: Students sit in a circle. Each student is given a picture of a household item they have learned. Students hold their pictures up so that everyone can see them.

The teacher begins by saying that Pancho Carranco (a fictitious character) has something.

Example: "Pancho Carranco tiene una cama."

The person holding that card will quickly answer. No, Pancho Carranco no tiene una cama, él tiene una mesa. And the next person says; No, Pancho Carranco no tiene _____, tiene _____.

Send A Problem (More advanced 7-12)

Activity: Students work in Teams

Goal: To practice vocabulary

Procedure: Give each team four vocabulary pictures. Teams simultaneously "sound table" four lists of sentences that describe the item without mentioning the name of the item. Each student writes one sentence for a particular picture and then passes it to the next student until each item has four descriptions sentences. Teams collect and pass in the pictures and share each description with a different team. Each team should receive four paragraphs.

Each team reads the description out loud and tries to guess what the item is. The sending team can verify the answer if there is a question.

Games to Play

SCAVENGER HUNT: Divide the class into teams of 4-6. Whatever will make six teams. Then, hand out the list of items to find. They must leave the list face down until all lists are handed out. (note: each list should be slightly different) Items that are common enough and small enough, must be physically collected. Large item or items, may only be one and should have a series of tags connected to them. Students can take or tear off one tag (taking all the tags will get your team disqualified.) When all items are retrieved they must be verified against the list by the teacher.

If you like, you could give candy treats or some other reward. I like to keep a bag of chocolate Kisses or Jolly Ranchers (obviously each individually wrapped.)

WINNERS: Each member of the team gets 3.

SECOND PLACE: each member gets 2.

OTHERS: If the team finished, each member gets one!

You could give coupons for bonus points, one free quiz, no homework pass, etc.

Note: you can use pictures or articles (small toys work well).

(To make tearaway tags type words for items six times. Print and cut each grouping as a square with a margin on one side for taping. Cut almost all the way through between each word for easy tearing.)

CATEGORIES: This is a team game.

- 1) Divide the class into teams any way you wish. (example: Boys vs. girls, one side of the classroom against the other, then by birthday months (make a line (in order) beginning with Jan.- Dec. Then, split group in half.
- 2) Send one person from each team to the board. When they get the category and I say "Comienzen" (Begin- in Spanish), they will write five items in Spanish within that category.
- 3) First one done with five CORRECT answers gets the point. (I am lenient on spelling with middle school and first year.)

Obviously, the categories get harder in advanced classes.

WARNING If you have a disabled student you may want to play OUTBURST or keep in mind:

- 1) Lefties are at a disadvantage in this game...try to pair them if possible.
- 2) Accommodations need to be made for handicapped students...let them have a "champion"-someone who writes as they say the answer. Have the other competitor work the same way with two students...one tells the other what to write.
- 3) I let the students at their desk help by using their books and looking up answers, BUT they cannot get out of their seats! It does get a BIT NOISY!

HERE ARE SOME CATEGORIES YOU CAN USE:

Rooms of the house (including outdoors)

Household objects found in each room

Numbers

Colors

Objects in the classroom

Prepositions

Days of the week

Months of the year

Seasons

Family members

Locations in town

Foods

(The possibilities are endless)

OUTBURST: This is a team game. It requires that you make category cards as follows:

CARDS: Take a 3X5 card and punch out five holes down each side (one on every other line works well.) Write a category at the top of the card. Next to each hole write a common item in Spanish that is in the category. To check off the answers place the card over a blank piece of paper. For each new team or card, just shift the paper underneath to a clean spot so no checks show through the holes. One piece of underpaper may last the whole game. MAKE CARDS FOR AT LEAST A DOZEN CATEGORIES. You may want to have one set for level one and another for level two, etc.

TO PLAY:

- 1) I usually divide the class in half by different ways each time we play.
- 2) Each Team takes a turn. I call out the category and they can shout out answers for 30 seconds. (It helps to have a timer person or an egg timer!).

- 3) Each team gets one point for each answer on my card. A correct answer will NOT give a point unless it is on my card!

It does get a BIT NOISY!

You can use the same categories as previously listed.

Juego de Concentración- (Concentration)

Materials: Flash cards (pictures and matching words or English/Spanish flash cards.) Place all of the picture cards and word cards down. Players take turns turning two cards up to see if they can get a match (picture card and its corresponding word card.) If the player does not get a match, then he/she returns the two cards to their original positions facing down. The player with the most matches wins the game.

Ve a Pescar (Go Fish)

Materials: Same cards from Concentration game

Usually played in groups of two. Give seven cards to each player. Place the remaining cards in a pile. The players place their cards up and take turns asking for a match to the cards they have in hand (using the Spanish vocabulary). Example: "¿Tienes un gato? (Do you have a cat?) If their opponent doesn't have the card, he says "Ve a pescar" (Go fish) and the student then picks from the remaining pile of cards.

Piensa Rápido (Think Fast)

Materials: Paper, pencil, timer

Using an egg timer give the students 15-30 seconds (or more) to write as many words as they can remember from their vocabulary. The one with the most correct words wins the game.

More Games, Group Activities and Classroom Miscellaneous Flash Cards

Use the Vocabulary flashcards that accompany each mini unit to create flashcards, or have students create their own.

For each set of words, I make 15 packets of each set of flash cards. I have them run on cardstock so they last longer. On each card the picture is on one side and the word in Spanish is on the other side. I also give each student a copy of the pictures so that they can have their own set of flash cards. Here are some of the games and activities I use them for.

1. Memory: Each pair of students receives a deck of cards. They lay them face down and try to match the vocabulary word with the picture.
2. Go Fish: The students can play a version of the card game Go Fish. They can also make use of a few commands (i.e., vete a pescar).
3. Grab the Card: Each pair of students lays out all of the pictures face up (the words are not used in this one). I call out a vocabulary word and the first one to grab the picture puts it in his or her pile. At the end, the one with the greatest number of cards is the winner.
4. Matching: Each pair of students lays out all of the cards (words and pictures). When I tell them to begin they turn all of the cards over and match the pictures with the words. The first pair to correctly match all of them together wins.
5. Flash Cards: The students can use the pictures to drill each other on vocabulary words.
